

EXPLANATION

|  |   |
|--|---|
| Qyal  | Younger alluviumAlluvial-fan and wash deposits. Mainly well-rounded cobbles and pebbles derived in large part from the older alluvium. The surface materials lack desert varnish.   |
| Qf  | TravertineCalcium carbonate precipitated from ground water at the sites of existing and former springs.   |
| Qoal  | Older alluviumDissected alluvial-fan deposits. Mainly boulders, cobbles, and pebbles and interstitial sand and silt, derived from rocks of the basement complex. Moderately cemented and where undissected the surface materials are covered with desert varnish.         |
| Qf  | FanglomerateDissected, deformed, and cemented alluvial-fan deposits. The material ranges in size from boulders to silt derived from rocks of the basement complex. Angular, poorly sorted, and generally well cemented with travertine and veins of onyx.                 |
| QTL   | Locustrine depositsPredominantly tuffaceous silt and clay, moderately indurated.  |
| QTC   | Continental depositsConglomerate and mud-flow debris derived from volcanic rocks of the Black Mountains and from rocks of the basement complex. Includes beds of sand and silt. Also includes undifferentiated continental deposits in the northern and eastern map area. |
| bc  | Basement complexUndifferentiated rocks of the Funeral Mountains, predominantly dolomite and quartzite of Cambrian age.  |

| U - - - - - D                                      | FaultDashed where inferred, dotted where concealed. Upthrown and downthrown sides indicated where known.  |
| Pi  | Well  |
| BI  | Tunnel, buried tile, or excavation  |
| R   | Spring, flowing   |
| KI  | Step, flow too small to measure   |
| OR<sup>2</sup>  | Phreatophyte area   |
| Strike and dip of bed  |   |
